

The Anthropocene: Challenging the Disciplines

9:00-9:30	Eva Horn & Michael Wagreich:	Welcome and introduction
9:30-10:30	Davor Vidas:	Two tasks of the Anthropocene Working Group (Keynote)
10:30-11:00	Coffee break
11:00-11:15	Colin Waters:	Understanding the Anthropocene epoch demands a new multi-disciplinary approach to assessing recent geological time
11:15-11:30	Matt Edgeworth:	The material challenge: New configurations of anthropogenic strata that refuse to fit within existing conceptual frameworks
11:30-12:00	Panel discussion
12:00-12:15	Franz Mauelshagen:	Challenging the historian: Synchronous boundaries
12:15-12:30	Jürgen Renn:	The Anthropocene and the History of Science
12:30-13:00	Panel discussion
13:00-14:00	Lunch break
14:00-15:00	Bronislaw Szerszynski:	Thinking through the planet (Keynote)
15:00-15:30	Coffee break
15:30-15:45	Susanne Weigelin-Schwiedrizik:	Going against the grain: How the concept of the Anthropocene necessitates a fundamental shift in pursuing, organizing and assessing research
15:45-16:00	Manfred Laubichler:	Global Futures in the Anthropocene: What knowledge do we need?
16:00-16:30	Panel discussion
16:30-16:45	Katrin Hornek:	Dear ancient ocean krill, it's us - your petrocultural body
16:45-17:00	Christoph Rosol:	Knowledge as an experimental practice: Lessons from the Anthropocene Curriculum project
17:00-17:30	Panel discussion

8. April, Sky Lounge (Oskar-Morgenstern-Platz 1, Universität Wien)

Registration and contact: anastassiya.schacht@univie.ac.at

Veranstaltung des
Vienna Anthropocene
Network